FINAL EXPENSE PLANNING

A Gift of Peace and Protection for Your Family

Losing a loved one is one of life's most difficult experiences. During such a time, the last thing a family should have to worry about is how to pay for funeral costs and other end-of-life expenses. Final expense planning is a compassionate way to ensure that your family can focus on honoring your memory rather than managing financial burdens.

What is Final Expense Insurance?

Final expense insurance, often called "burial insurance," is a type of whole life policy designed specifically to cover the costs associated with a person's passing. These policies typically have smaller death benefits than traditional life insurance, making them more affordable and easier to qualify for, even for those with health concerns.

Common End-of-Life Costs

Expense Category	Estimated Costs	Why It Matters
Funeral Services	$7,000 - $12,000+	Covers casket, viewing, and professional fees
Cemetery Costs	$2,000 - $5,000+	Includes plot, vault, and headstone
Medical Bills	Varies	Settles outstanding healthcare or hospice costs
Legal & Admin	$1,000 - $3,000+	Covers probate fees and final debt settlement

The Benefits of Planning Ahead

By securing a final expense policy today, you lock in your coverage and ensure that funds are available immediately upon your passing. Unlike traditional life insurance, which can take weeks to pay out, many final expense policies are designed for rapid disbursement to cover urgent costs.

Why It Is a Gift to Your Family

Financial Security: It prevents your children or spouse from having to dip into their savings or take out loans to cover your final arrangements.

Emotional Relief: Knowing that the financial side is handled allows your family to grieve and celebrate your life without the added stress of "how will we pay for this?"

Simplicity: These policies are straightforward, with fixed premiums that never increase and coverage that never expires as long as premiums are paid.

Conclusion

Final expense planning is not about death; it is about the love you have for those you leave behind. It is a final act of kindness that provides clarity and support when it is needed most. At Allied Life Financial Group, we specialize in helping families find the right coverage to ensure a dignified and stress-free transition.
